

UNSW
SYDNEY

Australia's
Global University

UNSW Medicine

Interested in studying forensic mental health?

The Forensic Mental Health Program provides an opportunity for a comprehensive training in forensic mental health by coursework. It is designed to provide training, skills and expertise required in the forensic mental health workplace both in the private and public arena.

If you would like to build expertise in a specific area you can choose to study individual subjects (up to 24 units of credit in any one academic year) from our extensive range of courses to ensure your knowledge and skills are current and you remain competitive in your area of expertise. You can choose whether you complete the subject assessment. If you decide to be admitted to the award program at the University, you may apply for credit for those subjects.

All subjects are delivered online.

Courses available

PSCY9901	Law and Mental Health*
PSCY9902	Psychiatry and the Criminal Law*
PSCY9903	Violence*
PSCY9904	Administration, Institutions & Services*
PSCY9911	Mental Disorders, Personality Disorders & Crime*
PSCY9912	Substance use problems and offending*
PSCY9913	Disordered & Criminal Sexual Behaviour*
PSCY9914	Families, Children & Adolescent Forensic Psychiatry*
PSCY9915	Civil Law in Relation to Psychiatry*

* 6 units of credit

Contact us for more information on how to enrol

UNSW Forensic Mental Health Program
Education Support Team

T: +61 (2) 9382 7442 / +61 (2) 9382 7396

E: fmh@unsw.edu.au

W: forensicmentalhealth.med.unsw.edu.au